

INTERNATIONAL STUDENT AND EARLY
CAREER RESEARCHER NETWORK FOR

Food Related Learning

An International Early Career Researcher (ECR) Network for Food Related Learning has been established in May 2024 and is hosted by the Department of Food and Nutrition, and Sport Science at the University of Gothenburg, Sweden. PhD student, post doc and ECRs from different countries with interest in Food Related Learning are most welcome to join.

This new and exciting international network strives to create spaces for community, collaboration, and knowledge building between students and researchers working in areas broadly related to food related learning. More information about the kick of event can be found on the following page.

A variety of events including workshops, coffee hours, seminars, and more will be arranged starting in fall 2024. This is a great opportunity to form international connections, collaborate with like-minded scholars, and access safe spaces to share ideas and work.

For more information or to join, please contact Gabrielle Edwards at gabrielle.edwards@gu.se.

This event is proudly supported by:

UNIVERSITY OF
GOTHENBURG

INTERNATIONAL STUDENT AND EARLY
CAREER RESEARCHER NETWORK FOR

Food Related Learning KICKOFF EVENT!

May 15 2024

17:00-18:30 CEST

Zoom

Join us at our kick off event for this new international network! This event presents an incredible opportunity for students and researchers to connect and create community with an international network of like-minded individuals. Don't miss out on this fantastic chance to contribute to shaping this community!

For Who?

PhD students and early career researchers whose work broadly relates to food related learning. We are looking to build a truly interdisciplinary community of researchers who investigate food related issues from a variety of perspectives and academic fields.

What is it?

Our first event will be a collaborative and interactive session that aims to answer the question "what kind of community do we want to be?" This session is an opportunity to have your voice heard and will shape future events within this network.

Why attend?

- Contribute to the formation of a supportive community of international researchers who share common interests, providing a platform for ongoing collaboration, discussion, and knowledge exchange
- Access opportunities to present your work in both formal and informal settings
- Explore intersections between various disciplines to garner a holistic understanding of food related learning
- ... and more!

Take the first steps towards joining this international community!

Register online now:

Click here to register

Questions? Contact Gabrielle Edwards at gabrielle.edwards@gu.se

This event is proudly supported by:

UNIVERSITY OF
GOTHENBURG